

Orthodontic treatment

Orthodontics is about improving the harmony of your mouth and jaw and making the most of your teeth. The results are that you can eat more comfortably, care for your teeth and gums more easily...but most of all, you will be given back your smile and confidence.

The case:

This teenage patient came to us with severe crowding in the upper and lower jaws. Orthodontic treatment was required to prevent further crowding in the future.

The detail:

The patient had not lost some of their teeth, this left the patient with severe crowding which resulted in some other teeth trying to grow through the gums higher up. The treatment involved the removal of a few teeth, followed by a brace for 24 months to align the remaining teeth.

The result:

A more confident and happy smiling teenager, who would avoid any further crowding problems in the future.

Orthodontic treatment

The case:

This young lady in her early twenties was unhappy with the appearance of her teeth.

The detail:

The patient underwent orthodontic treatment for 24 months following the extraction of four teeth to align the remaining upper and lower teeth to give an aesthetically pleasing smile.

The result:

A happy smiling young lady who was no longer concerned with the appearance of her teeth.

The case:

This teenage patient came to us as she was unhappy with the appearance of her teeth. They were sticking out and making her feel uncomfortable and therefore not wanting to smile.

The detail:

The treatment was undertaken in two stages. The first involved helping the lower jaw grow in line with the upper jaw with the aid of a removable brace, worn for nine months. Then to produce an aesthetically pleasing smile, a fixed brace was worn. The treatment took two and a half years from start to completion.

The result:

A teenager who was proud of her teeth and no longer unhappy with the appearance of her smile.
